According to David Pells, Managing Director of the PM World Library: “This is the most important step we have taken since launching the library a year ago. We are now starting to realize our vision of becoming a real library, with access to information and resource databases normally only available through academic and public libraries. For those professionals no longer at a university or in locations where libraries are not readily available, this should be a tremendous benefit. We’re very excited about it.”

“For anyone researching a project management topic,” Pells adds, “for an article or paper, academic research project, book or even to solve a business problem, access to these databases may prove invaluable. The group memberships can also make these resources available to multiple students, professionals and teams at even lower rates.”

The PM World Library (PMWL) is a global resource for continuous learning in portfolio, program and project management (P/PM). The PMWL is produced and maintained by PM World which also publishes the monthly PM World Journal (PMWJ), a web-based publication featuring dozens of articles, papers and stories about projects and project management around the world.
