Verto and i3Works Announce Strategic Partnership to Drive Public Sector Programme Success

Tuesday 18th March, London – Verto, a leading provider of programme and portfolio management (PPM) software solutions for UK public sector organisations, announces today that it has joined forces with i3Works, a specialist consultancy in programme delivery and transformation. This strategic partnership ensures that public sector organisations not only have the right digital tools to support the management of their programmes effectively but also the support needed to embed lasting cultural and operational change.

While Verto’s platform enables organisations to streamline and manage complex programmes of work, successful implementation requires changes in processes, methods, and culture. This is where i3Works plays a crucial role. With deep expertise in consultancy, leadership training, and hands-on change management, i3Works supports organisations in embedding the right frameworks and practices to maximise the benefits of Verto’s platform.

Through this partnership, Verto and i3Works can offer a complete solution that extends beyond technology to include expert-led transformation and refines how they manage and deliver their programmes, as trusted consultancy partners.

Commenting on the collaboration, Simon Sharp, CEO, Verto, said:

“This partnership with i3Works represents a significant step forward in ensuring that public sector organisations not only have the right technology but also the expertise needed to make meaningful and sustainable changes that last. By working together, we can offer a complete wraparound solution that supports organisations at every stage of their transformation journey.”

Damian Gunn, Chief Revenue Officer of i3Works, had this to say:

“We are thrilled to partner with Verto, who hold the same culture and values as ourselves. This collaboration allows us to combine our strengths and deliver unparalleled value to our clients. Together, we can drive innovation and provide comprehensive solutions that meet the evolving needs of public sector organisations.”
