June 2016 conference again offers project management researchers an opportunity to showcase work, network and join working groups

6 November 2015 – Vienna, Austria and Paris, France – A call for papers has been issued for the European Academy of Management Conference EURAM 2016 to be held in Paris during 1-4 June 2016. The conference will include a “Project Organising” track, to feature papers and presentations by researchers from the project management field. Researchers worldwide are invited to submit abstracts now.

The Project Organising: General Track provides an international platform to share and debate topical issues in the management of projects as temporary organisations and their context in project-based and/or project oriented organisations and in their context of inter-organisational networks. This includes the management of single projects, mega projects and programmes as temporary organisations, the management of project portfolios, the management of project-oriented organisations, which deliver projects to external or internal customers and project networks, or multi-enterprise meta-organisations, which are created in order to manage projects and programmes, and organisations which finance and sponsor projects and programmes.

In the General Track we feature academic papers related to the broad field of Project Organising. As the general theme of EURAM 2016 is Manageable Cooperation we especially welcome papers that

- relate project organising to cognate fields such as Organisational Design, Behaviour, Innovation, Entrepreneurship, Sustainable Development, Performance Management, Human Resource Management, Leadership and Marketing
