Wideman Project Management Website updates announced for December 2015

1 December 2015 – Ontario, Canada – Max Wideman has announced updates to his popular project management website, www.maxwideman.com. According to Max:

This month - Our Guest Joe Marasco does it again! This time he helps you assess the probability of your project finishing on time based on the results achieved at your first milestone. Joe uses Bayesian project management theory, but of course, he provides a nomograph for the difficult calculation part.

In Musings, we present Word Hierarchies - Part 2 starting with DIKW and adding six other relevant hierarchies.

Our Book Review this month discusses Gert Noordzij's new book: Project Management of Hotel Opening Processes. In this book Gert is Exploring better ways to open new hotels by proposing a new area of project management application.

If you are looking for answers, guidelines or templates, check out Max's Issacons - "Issues and Considerations" - that are presented in bullet form for quick and easy reference by project managers.
