The Asia Pacific Federation of Project Management (apfpm) is a regional grouping of independent project management professional societies in countries bordering the Pacific Ocean. Now with member associations in 20 countries, the organization was formed to harness the synergies of project management related professional associations across the region.

Through international collaborative partnering these associations can more effectively grow and develop their organisations; leveraging the stature, strength, and connectivity of each other. Membership is open to independent national Project Management associations from countries in the Asia Pacific region. For more information about apfpm or individual member associations, visit <http://www.apfpm.org/index.php> or contact the association directly at contactus@apfpm.org.
