Original articles and papers for December and January editions sought – celebrate 2016 successes; share knowledge to start the new year

21 November 2016 – Dallas, London, Sydney – Project management practitioners, experts and researchers around the world are invited to submit original works for publication in the December and January editions of the PM World Journal (PMWJ). Articles and papers are sought that describe experience, good practices, issues and solutions related to managing programs and projects in any application, industry or location.

The PMWJ has issued numerous calls for papers over the last few years, all of which remain in effect. Each edition of the PMWJ also contains a variety of content categories, including featured (research based) papers, advisory articles, commentaries, interviews, case studies, reports and book reviews. The “second editions” category provides an opportunity for republication of papers previously presented at conferences or published in a language other than English. Authors of all works published in the PMWJ receive showcase recognition.

According to Managing Editor David Pells, “We are seeking original works from authors around the world, especially in transition economies where advancing the profession really requires sharing of experience and information. Even in such basic industries as agriculture, education and healthcare, effective project management can create tremendous value. And technology projects are everywhere now. If you have knowledge to share, please send us an article or paper.”

Questions or original works can be submitted to editor@pmworldjournal.net. For author guidelines, visit <http://pmworldjournal.net/authors/author-guidelines/>. All works published in the PMWJ are archived in the PM World Library.
