

International Academic Advisor

Dr Martina Huemann

Editor-in-Chief, International Journal of Project Management
Professor, Head of Project Management Group
Vienna University of Business and Economics (WU Vienna)
Vienna, Austria

Dr. Martina Huemann, Martina Huemann is Editor-in-chief of the International Journal of Project Management; Professor, Head of Project Management Group and Academic Director of the Professional MBA Project Management, WU - Vienna University of Business and Economics (WU Vienna); Human Resource & Project Management Expert / Coach / Consultant; and Founder and Manager of enable2change, a network of experts that enable others to put strategy into action and manage projects professionally.

She has project management experience in research, marketing and organizational development projects. Martina Huemann is actively involved in professional project management associations nationally and internationally. She is board member of PMA - Project Management Austria, and was previously a member of the IPMA Research Management Board where she was responsible for IPMA Research Awards. She has also served as an academic advisor for the Project Management Institute (PMI).

Her research has focused on human resource management in the project-oriented company, competencies and capabilities in project-oriented companies, sustainable development in project management, as well as auditing of projects and programs. Martina Huemann is a consultant at Roland Gareis Consulting. She trains project personnel and consults for projects, programs and project-oriented companies internationally.

Information about Vienna University of Economics and Business Administration can be found at <http://www.wu-wien.ac.at/english>.

Information about PMG can be found at <http://www.wu-wien.ac.at/pmg>.

Martina can be contacted at Martina.Huemann@wu.ac.at

Profile updated March 2019