

Wideman PM Website updates announced for April 2019

PM EDUCATION NEWS

1 April 2019 – Ontario, Canada – Max Wideman has announced updates to his popular and educational project management website, www.maxwideman.com. According to Max:

Breaking News: Policies, Principles, Practices, Procedures and Core Concepts is a Paper especially developed as a result of discussions within an ISO (International Standards Organization) task force. This task force is charged with updating ISO's family of project management documents. The paper describes the need for establishing a set of universal Core Concepts for the Governance of all project work. We would like to see it distributed as widely as possible.

Go to the Papers index (04/19) and download a PDF copy now!

Musings: Yet another attempt to Look into the Future [of] Project Management. Not least of the expected changes are an increase in the number of specialties, more project effort carried out independently, and a legal framework for the offering of project management services.

The Original PMBOK: We have been working on a project to resurrect the original Project Management Body of Knowledge (dubbed "PMBOK") published by the Project Management Institute in 1987, and make it available as a PDF document. Remember, this original PMBOK document was issued before personal computers were readily available, and the PDF file format was not yet invented.

Want a copy? See PMBOK-1987 Reborn under Other Areas and Interests lower on the Home Page. This original PMBOK document is a statement of project management and not a Guide. As such it contains advice still of value today.
