2021 Integrated Program Management Workshop

Virtual IPMW to be in two sessions during December and January 2021

18 December 2020 – Virginia, USA – The College of Performance Management (CPM) has announced that their annual IPMW (Integrated Program Management Workshop) is happening January 19 - 21 and January 25 – 27, 2021. This will be a virtual program featuring world-class training and professional development, and a deep dive into hot topics with practitioners and world leaders in performance management.

Attendees will earn valuable professional development units (PDUs) and gain practical tools, tips, and techniques to help them be more efficient and successful with project delivery. This workshop is being presented in short sessions over six days to accommodate busy schedules.

Visit <http://test.mycpm.org/ipmw-virtual/> to see the program agenda, speakers, and registration information.

The program consists of three tracks:

- Community of Practice workshops provide practical insights into real-world approaches implementing sound project management
- State of IPM (Integrated Program Management) workshops will cover in depth the latest industry standards and guidance
- CPM's Professional Education Program (PEP) courses provide a solid foundation in the principles and data analysis techniques of earned value management (EVM) and IPM concepts and processes -- and how to apply them. These courses, and the entire event, will provide those new to IPM with the knowledge they need to advance in their careers.

The 30+ sessions are presented by leading IPM subject matter experts, who will share their insights, case studies, and best practices.

Flexible Registration Options

Attendees can register for the full program or customize their participation by attending single sessions through CPM's a-la-carte registration option. CPM is also offering a group discounts to organizations. Register at <https://host.regform.com/2020-ipmw/> or you can reach out to admin@mycpm.org for additional details.
