Under terms of the agreement, PM World will provide the following to PMSA:

- Publish news articles about PMSA activities and PM in South Africa;
- Publish articles, papers and other works by PMSA members;

PMSA has agreed to the following:

- Identify the PMWJ as a Media Partner on PMSA websites;
- Provide news and information to PM World as a basis for breaking news articles;
- Provide a PMSA member or leader to act as an International Correspondent for the PMWJ in South Africa

According to PMWJ editor David Pells, “We supported several PMSA conferences as media partner some years ago, so I am happy to renew our relationship. With the wider international reach of the PMWJ now, we are in a better position to support their professional activities and mission. Hopefully we can publish works by PMSA members in the future as well as offer them new career development and learning opportunities.”

According to Prof Les Labuschagne, PMSA Director, “Thank you for this new unexpected support. The current pandemic brought major disruption to PMSA at both leadership and operational levels. We are currently rebuilding, and revisiting our strategies and value proposition. We also see the role of professional societies changing as members' needs change. This new relationship should provide tangible benefits to both our members and the association."
