Initiative and creativity are moving forward at

PMI Madrid Spain Chapter

Cultivating initiative and developing creativity is a real challenge in times of pandemic. I had the opportunity to chat with the current president of the PMI Madrid Chapter and she told me about the different ideas that the Board of Directors was handling to continue advancing in offering added value to their Chapter members.

One of the initiatives that I would like to point out, and that already began two years ago is the AGORA initiative, which consists of giving the opportunity to project managers to develop their leadership skills through reading texts related to this topic and reflecting individually, but exchanging and sharing ideas with the members of their group. Since we cannot yet fully interact face-to-face, at least have the possibility to cultivate and develop our skills through virtual media. I believe that the reinforcement of this initiative during the year 2022 can be key and from here I congratulate our PMI Chapter volunteer Beatriz Hierro who has been leading this important project.

Beatriz Hierro

The president of the Madrid Chapter (Susana Moreno) firmly believes that facilitating the development of the "non-technical" skills of the members of the Chapter, through activities and projects where all members can collaborate, can add value and ensure that they are increasingly better prepared.

Throughout the year 2022 the Madrid Chapter will organize another Congress in spring, which we all hope can be face-to-face. This Congress shall be preceded by elections of the Board of Directors of the Chapter.

As a member and former president of the Chapter of PMI Madrid Spain, it is fantastic to perceive that our Chapter is still very active and focused on adding value to its members, society and the profession.

HAPPY PROJECTS, TOMORROW WILL BE BETTER!
