According to PMWJ editor David Pells, “Brigitte Schaden is well known throughout the project management world based on her leadership of IPMA as well as her work with GAPPS. She has deep knowledge about project management in many countries based on her 25+ years of experience at both national and international levels. We are honored that she has agreed to join our honorary advisory team.”

Brigitte Schaden stated, “I have known David Pells for more than 15 years, and some of the other global advisors far longer than that. The PM World Journal has become quite well known and respected in the project management professional world. I will be happy to support the PM World mission and look forward to interacting with their other advisors, including several very good friends.”

Pells added, “I met Brigitte many years ago and attended several global congresses when she was leading IPMA. She is one of the most accomplished and respected female leaders in the global project management profession. Plus, she is very well versed in professional ethics, which I highly respect. I look forward to her input and influence on both the journal and library.”

PM World engages with professional and academic leaders in various countries to support the organization’s dual missions of advancing knowledge sharing and continuous learning related to modern program and project management.
