

KBR named Company of the Year at APM Awards 2023

The winners of the annual Association for Project Management (APM) Awards 2023 have been announced at a prestigious awards ceremony taking place in London on Monday 20 November. The awards, sponsored by RPC UK Ltd, celebrate excellence within the project profession – from project organisations, projects, programmes and individuals working across a broad range of industry sectors in the UK and internationally.

KBR, a global business delivering science, technology and engineering solutions, was named Company of the Year at this year's event. The award recognises companies and consultancies operating across all sectors that are committed to excellence in project delivery and outcomes.

KBR's UK Projects and Programmes Division specialises in defence, nuclear and infrastructure projects. Its people specialise in delivering large-scale, complex programme and project management solutions in the UK, France and other countries in the Europe, Middle East and Africa (EMA) region.

Their work spans multiple project types, commercial mechanisms and industries. KBR's team has particular expertise in the delivery of projects in challenging environments, from the highly-regulated UK nuclear industry to the cultural complexities of large infrastructure projects in the Middle East.

Simon Davies, Head of Project Management at KBR said: "KBR is committed to innovating and improving the project management profession, and we are very grateful for being recognised this evening for the efforts we are making."

KBR's entry to the APM Awards provided details of their approach to training and development, innovation, cultural and change management, knowledge management, benefits realisation, and much more. The Awards judges praised them for their strong, consistent and clear strategy and vision, their clear and adaptive methods, and for embedding sustainability within the organisation.

One judge commented: "This was a very good submission that addressed all major areas of the marking scheme and provided some useful examples to illustrate practical application of their approach."

Professor Adam Boddison OBE, Chief Executive of APM, said: “I would like to congratulate KBR and all the finalists in this award category for their outstanding achievements within the project profession.

“Our awards are all about celebrating the outstanding successes of the project profession, and I would like to congratulate all of this year’s winners and finalists for their incredible achievements over the past year.”

Other finalists in the Company of the Year category were Turner & Townsend, MIGSO-PCUBED and PA Consulting.

For a full list of the APM Award 2023 winners visit apm.org.uk/apm-awards/

Ends

For further media information or to speak with an APM spokesperson please contact:
Hayley Mountstevens, PR and Communications Officer
Email: hayley.mountstevens@apm.org.uk Tel: 07866 800 539

Notes to editors:

About APM

APM (Association for Project Management) is a professional membership organisation that sets the standards for the project profession and raises its profile. APM is the only chartered organisation representing the project profession in the world. As a registered charity, APM delivers learning and networking opportunities, qualifications, research, resources, events and best practice guidance for the project community, helping the profession deliver better. APM currently has over 40,000 members and more than 400 corporate partners located in more than 140 countries around the world.

Visit apm.org.uk for further details.