According to PMWJ Managing Editor David Pells, “This was one of our largest editions, with 11 featured papers from authors in six different countries, including four important research papers by academic authors in Nigeria. I am especially grateful to regular authors Alan Stretton, Robert Chapman, Prof M. F. Harake, Bob Prieto, Raju Rao and Pat Weaver (who are all recognized experts in the PM world) for their new contributions. It was also a pleasure to meet Stephen Devaux this month; his paper on earned breakdown structure is a significant addition to the whole subject of project controls, project benefits and value creation. Some of these papers this month are really important, creating significant new knowledge that expands our global pm bok.”

New authors this month include: Demetris Antoniadis, PhD (UK), Prof Stewart Clegg, PhD (Australia), Andrew Conway (UK), Stephen Devaux (USA), Chukwuma Elizabeth (Nigeria), Godson Kelechi (Nigeria), Innocent F. Makata (Nigeria), Babajide Ojo, PhD (Nigeria), Godson Okereke (Nigeria), Josh Ramirez, PhD (USA), Lucian Sfar (Canada), Nnamdi Alex Udobi, PhD (Nigeria), Emmanuel Wesley (USA), Linda Whitesell (USA) and Te Wu, PhD (USA). New works by 30 authors already included in the library were also added.

“Our interviews are a highlight each month, and this month is no exception,” Pells adds. “The interviews with Deanna Landers and Robret Joslin are very interesting. I also want to thank the authors of outstanding series, advisory and commentary articles this month (including several about AI). With the addition of a case study, a second edition paper, four reports and four book reviews, this is one of our fullest and best editions yet.”
